

Complaint examination system

The Act respecting health services and social services provides for a complaint examination system in the health and social services network.

The complaint examination system applies to both public and private institutions and resources.

Why file a complaint?

Filing a complaint is a constructive action that ensures that users' rights are respected and helps improve the quality of health and social services.

Before filing a complaint, you should first discuss it with the staff responsible for care and services in the institution concerned.

Who can file a complaint?

The user (or his representative) and the heir (or legal representative) of a deceased user may file an oral or written complaint, by phone, by mail or in person.

Procedure for filing a complaint

First-level complaint

You are dissatisfied with the care and services provided by

- an institution of the health and social services network;
 - any other organization or any other partnership or person to whom this institution reports;
- an ambulance transport service³;
- a private seniors' residence;
- an intermediate resource;
- a family-type resource;
- a community organization;
- a private housing resource (gambling or drug addiction).

3. For ambulance services in Montréal and Laval only, complaints must be filed with the service quality and complaints commissioner at Corporation d'urgence-santé.

Second-level complaint

If you are dissatisfied with the Commissioner's answers or conclusions, you may address the Québec Ombudsman:

- by phone at 1-800-463-5070;
- by email at protecteur@protecteurducitoyen.qc.ca;
- by Internet at www.protecteurducitoyen.qc.ca.

Reporting rights violations or abuse

If you observe a situation where the rights of an individual or group of individuals are being violated or if you suspect or witness an abusive situation, you can take action. Immediately inform the service quality and complaints commissioner of the institution concerned. The process is confidential.

Assistance and support

The Centre d'assistance et d'accompagnement aux plaintes (CAAP) in your region can help you formulate a complaint or support you in your approach. Its services are free and confidential. Call 1-877-767-2227 (toll free).

The users' committee of the institution concerned can also assist you.

To find the contact information of the resources concerned, visit Quebec.ca/sante-plaintes.

Know Your Rights as a User

- Be informed¹ about the existing services and how to obtain them.
- Receive, with continuity and in a personalized and safe manner, health services and social services which are scientifically, humanly and socially appropriate.
- Choose the professional or the institution from whom or which you receive services.²
- Receive emergency care.
- Be informed of your state of health and the possible solutions and their consequences before consenting to the care concerning you.
- Be informed, as soon as possible, of any accident having occurred during the provision of services.
- Be treated, in every intervention, with courtesy, fairness and understanding, and with respect for your dignity, autonomy, needs and safety.
- Accept or refuse care, personally or through your representative, in a free and enlightened manner.
- Have access to your record, which is confidential.
- Participate in the decisions that concern you.
- Be accompanied and assisted by the person of your choice when you wish to obtain information on services.
- Make a complaint without risk of reprisals, be informed of the complaint examination procedure and be accompanied and assisted at every step of your approach, if necessary.
- Be represented for all your recognized rights if you temporarily or permanently become incapable of giving your consent.
- Receive services in English, if you are an Anglophone, according to the government access program.
- Receive end-of-life care.

1. Use of the male gender in this document refers to both women and men.

2. The institution determines the health services and social services it offers by accounting for its mission and its human, material and financial resources.

Examination of your complaint

1. The Commissioner receives your request and can help you formulate your complaint.
2. He examines your complaint to identify the problem clearly and to attempt to resolve it. At that time, he will ask for your version of the facts.
3. He collects information from the persons involved.
4. He informs you of the results within 45 days of receipt of your complaint. His conclusions are accompanied by solutions to solve the problem or corrective actions that are recommended to the institution.

What is a Service Quality and Complaints Commissioner?

The Commissioner is responsible for the application of the complaint examination procedure for the institution's users. Because he reports directly to the Board of Directors, he has the necessary independence to perform his duties. He is there to listen to you and ensure that your rights are respected. After examining complaints, he addresses recommendations to the Board of Directors.

If your complaint concerns a physician, a dentist, a pharmacist or a medical resident, the Commissioner will forward it to the medical examiner and inform you.

If you are dissatisfied with the medical examiner's answers or conclusions, you may exercise your right to recourse before the institution's review committee.

Private practices of physicians, dentists or other healthcare professionals are not covered by the complaint review system, except if they are bound by a service agreement with an institution of the health and social services network.

You may formulate a written or oral complaint confidentially to the Service Quality and Complaints Commissioner of the institution concerned.
